WILCOX & GIBBS SEWING MACHINE.
We would call attention to the following facts in connection with this Machine, which renders it superior to any other in use:
It forms a flat elastic seam which will not rip or wear.
It is entirely noiseless:
A patented device prevents its being turned backward;
The needle cannot be set wrong;
Can be used successfully without other instructions than accompany the Machine;
It received the Gold Medal of the American Institute in 1863. For particulars, enquire of

Notice to all Persons having Demands on the Government
PENSIONS, BOUNTY PRIZE MONEY, PATENTS, Pay for Vouchers, Scrip Back Pay, Lost Bounty and Spoliation Claims obtained by the undersigned, who will attend to all other business before the Departments at Washington City.
Soldiers becoming disabled by disease contracted while in the service are entitled to a Pension. Those who served in any war previous to the 4th of March, 1855 are entitled to Bounty Land. Those who served in the Navy during the late war, and were legally attached to a vessel of a squadron on duty, although not participating in the battles of prizes, are entitled to Prize Money. In many Indian Treaties provision is made for payment of Spoliation Claims out of Annuities. To collect the foregoing and all such claims now owned in this country or the settlement of which no similar provision has been made by treaty—demand should be made of the Department of the proper Department and if found just, recommendation will be made to Congress to pass an act retaining the amount thereof out of the Annuities.

Senator Wilson's Remarks

We give below a full telegraphic synopsis of Senator Wilson's remarks in reply to those of Mr Stewart of Nevada upon the bill to secure the freedom of the citizens of the States lately in rebellion. Mr Stewart indorsed the President's message as patriotic and truthful—controverted the theory that the Southern States are out of the Union, and that they have been reduced to a territorial condition, denied the right of the General Government to interfere in defining the qualifications of electors in the Southern States, and argued that the people of the North were not justified in forcing negro suffrage upon the South while they withheld political rights from negroes in the Northern States. The report of Senator Wilson's speech is as follows:

Mr Wilson replied to the argument of Mr. Stewart, stating the necessity that existed for the passage of the bill before the Senate. The testimony of the leading officers of the army in the South went to prove that great atrocities and cruelties were perpetrated upon freedmen in the South. Mr. Stewart had questioned the truth of the reports respecting these cruelties, but he might as well doubt the cruelties of Andersonville, where eighty three per cent. of the men who entered the hospitals died, and where more American soldiers lie buried than fell in the whole Mexican —more Americans lie buried than fell in Wellington's four great battles in Spain—more than fell at Waterloo, Inkermann, Alma and Sebastopol altogether. I desire to say a word further; we were told by Mr. Saulsbury yesterday that there was an apprehension here that the Democratic party was to come back again to power through the agency of the President of the United States. Sir, I think the Senator from Delaware was altogether mistaken in regard to any such proposition. I do not apprehend that the Democratic party is coming into power through the agency of the President of the United States, or through the agency of anybody else, a party that has maintained the attitude of the Democratic party during this great rebellion, and that has allied itself with a sluking and lost cause is not likely hereafter to get control of the Government of the United States. It needs reconstruction and reorganization quite as much as the rebel States of this Union, and must have reconstruction, time and reorganization before it can govern this country through anybody. As to the President, I know there has been a studied attempt, a systematic attempt, during the last few months, to separate him from the great party that elected him. I have never entertained any fears in regard to that matter. The President is bound to the men who elected him by honor, by principle, and by interest. His fame is to rest upon the great fact that he is able to complete the work which Abraham Lincoln commenced—the work of restoring a broken Union and preserving the cause of human liberty in America; that the President of the United States is as conscious as any man living that his reputation now and his fame with posterity is, and upon morning right straight forward and onward in the restoration of the Union and the security of the liberty of all men—the securing of equal, impartial and universal liberty. I do not entertain a doubt. He found the rebel States last spring broken, shivered, conquered and subjugated. No people since the morning of creation ever fought a braver battle than the rebels, and no man was ever so defeated, so subjugated, so conquered, conquered in the field, their ideas annihilated forever, many of them ruined in the future. No body of men have ever been so conquered and so punished. Sir, I have it not in my heart to seek their blood or their lives. But I believe it to be the sentiment of the country that we should demand guarantees for the future. But that while we demand these guarantees we shall say nothing or do nothing to humiliate or degrade any body of men in the country. I believe it to be in our power to secure all that patriotic and liberty-loving men of the country require. I believe that the President of the United States has labored according to his sense of duty to prepare the rebel States for admission into the Union, and to secure the liberties of the people of the country. In some things I would have done differently to what he has done; nothing inconsistent with the Congress of the United States; moving right straight forward and onward in passing the necessary legislation to complete the great work begun. He has made no issue with Congress and Congress has made no issue with him. He does not undertake to dictate to us, but he has pursued his own line of policy and we ought to pursue ours. If we believe we should go further than he has gone, why, let us pass the needed legislation; and if then the President takes issue with us, why then the issue will be made and met. But I do not think any issue will be made. I have an undoubting faith that if we enact the needed legislation to secure the liberties of all men in this country, and bring these States into Congress in a proper manner, it will receive the sanction and approval of the Executive Government of the country. I know that it has been and is the policy of the Democratic party to represent that a great and inexcusable conflict is to come between the President and Congress. It was so represented before the country last autumn. We met it in New Jersey, in Pennsylvania, and in the great State of New York and to day, Sir, of twenty-five loyal States that have stood by the country, twenty-three of them are in harmony with us upon this floor—stronger to-day in our sentiments and opinions than on any other day the sun ever shone upon, and we will be stronger to-morrow. There are some men, it seems to me, who are more devoted to the President than the mass of men who elected him. I think it to be our duty to give the President a manly, generous and honest support—to look on with hope and confidence, but to be as inflexible as destiny itself with the cause of impartial and universal liberty in the country—a cause for which 350,000 Union soldiers sleep in their bloody graves; to-day—a cause for which more than 400,000 scarred and maimed heroes tread the soil of the country. They have done their duty—their whole duty. They have trampled the rebellion down under the iron heel of war, and it is committed not to the President alone, not to Congress alone, but to the Administration put in power by the American people, to restore this Union, and to so restore it that there shall be no oppression, and no rule or regulation that shall oppress a single man we have made free. These are our words, to use the language of the President of the United States. Abraham Lincoln pledged himself to his country and his God for their emancipation, and to maintain their liberation, and that pledge I believe every department of this Government, Executive, Legislative and Judicial, will maintain. Measured by what existed last April, we have made progress, in some sections a great deal, in others less, and in some, perhaps, we have gone backward. But there has been a general progress during the last nine months, measured by what existed when the President entered upon his duties, and what now existed in the country, taking the whole rebel section into account. We have made progress, but we have not made so much as I wish we had made and I think we could have made. But if we have made less progress than we desired to make, we must make more in the future. That progress has been made only by fidelity to the great cause which we have stood by during the last four years of bloody war. We have had a conflict of twenty-five years of ideas and thoughts. Words and thoughts are stronger than cannon balls, and we have had four years of bloody war. Slavery, and everything that belongs to or pertains to it, lies prostrate before us to-day and the foot of a regenerated nation is upon it. Sir, I hope no words are to be uttered, and no steps to be taken, of a reactionary character. I hope that nothing, that goes by the name of the worst word in the English language—conservatism—is to be allowed here. If there is a word in the English language that means twenty years of servility and cowardice, it is the word—conservatism. It never ought to be on the lips of the American citizen. I hope, too, Sir, that we are not to make apologies here. The way to settle the question is not to say to the rebels, we do not want to degrade you, we have resisted for twenty years your aggressive policy of slavery and your barbarian robbers we lord the dishonor and disgrace of your policy you plunged us into four years of bloody civil war to perpetuate slavery, to make the ideas of slavery dominant in a republican and Christian land we resisted your aggressions before the people would rush into fratricidal war. We met the contest; we fought bravely, worthy of a better cause but you were defeated, crushed, annihilated ground to powder. Not a flag of yours waves between the capital and the Rio Grande; not a rebel soldier bears a rebel bayonet anywhere. We do not seek your lives or your blood, and you have but little property for us to seek if we would, all we ask is this, and this we shall ask and this we shall have as sure as God rules in the world, we have the men emancipated by the war, emancipated by legislation, emancipated by the proclamation of the martyred President, emancipated by the grand crowning act—the Constitutional Amendment. We shall have these men as free as you are to tread proudly their native hills. I want every rebel, and every rebel sympathizer, every repentant and unrepentant rebel in the land to understand that the loyal men of this country who voted the blood and treasure, and who gave their sons for the preservation of the Union and the cause of liberty have sworn it; they have written it on the lids of their bibles, they have engraved it on their door-posts, that these men shall be free indeed, not serfs, not slaves; and that no black laws or unfriendly legislation shall live on the books of any community in America. Mr. Wilson continued his argument, that loyal people had a right to the guarantee he had indicated. There was no difference, except on minor points, to some mode of action in the Union party. There had been these differences for twenty-five years in the Union party, and out of them had grown nothing but a free and manly discussion of great public questions. The Senator from Delaware, when he spoke of divisions in this great party, did not know the men who had fought the great battles for the country and for liberty if he supposed that men, accustomed to speak their minds freely as becomes American citizens

We give below a full and graphic synopsis of Senator Wilson's remarks in reply to those of Mr. Stewart of Nevada, upon the bill to secure the freedom of the citizens of the States lately in rebellion. Mr. Stewart insisted that the President's message as pacific and truthful contravened the theory that the Southern States are out of the Union and that they have been reduced to a territorial condition, to which the right of the General Government to legislate in defining the qualifications of electors in the Southern States, and argued that the people of the North were not justified in forcing negro suffrage upon the South while they withheld political rights from negroes in the Northern States. The report of Senator Wilson's speech is as follows:

Mr. Wilson replied to the argument of Mr. Stewart, stating the necessity that existed for the passage of the bill before the Senate. The testimony of the leading officers of the army in the South went to prove that great atrocities and cruelties were perpetrated upon freedmen in the South. Mr. Stewart had questioned the truth of the reports respecting these cruelties, but he might as well doubt the cruelties of Andersonville, where eighty three per cent of the men who entered the hospitals died, and where more Americans and brothers be buried than fell in the whole Mexican—more Americans be buried than fell in Wellington's four great battles in Spain—more than fell at Waterloo, Inkermann, Alma and Sebastopol altogether. I desire to say a word further; we were told by Mr. Saulsbury yesterday that there was an apprehension here that the Democratic party was to come back again to power through the agency of the President of the United States. Sir, I think the Senator from Delaware was altogether mistaken in regard to any such proposition. I do not apprehend that the Democratic party is coming into power through the agency of the President of the United States, or through the agency of anybody else, a party that has maintained the attitude of the Democratic party during this great rebellion, and that has allied itself with a sinking and lost cause is no likely hereafter to get control of the Government of the United States. It needs reconstruction and reorganization quite as much as the rebel States of this Union, and must have a reconstruction, time and reorganization before it can govern this country through anybody. As to the President, I know there has been a studied attempt, a systematic attempt, during the last few months, to separate him from the great party that elected him. I have never entertained any fears in regard to that matter. The President is bound to the men who elected him by honor, by principle, and by interest. His fame is to rest upon the great fact that he is able to complete the work which Abraham Lincoln commenced—the work of restoring a broken Union and preserving the cause of human liberty in America, that the President of the United States is as conscious as any man living that his reputation now and his fame with posterity depend upon moving right straight forward and onward in the restoration of the Union and the security of the liberty of all men—the securing of equal, important and universal liberty, I do not entertain a doubt. He found the rebel States last spring broken, shivered, conquered and subjugated. No people since the morning of creation ever fought a braver battle than the rebels, and no men were ever so defeated, so subjugated, so conquered, conquered on the field, their ideas annihilated forever, many of them ruined in the future. No body of men has ever been so conquered and so punished. Sir, I have not in my heart to seek their blood or their lives. But I believe it to be the sentiment of the country that we should demand guarantees for the future. But that while we demand these guarantees we shall say nothing or do nothing to humiliate or degrade any body of men in the country. I believe it to be in our power to secure all that patriotic and liberty-loving men of the country require. I believe that the President of the United States has labored according to his sense of duty to prepare the rebel States for admission into the Union, and to secure the liberties of the people of the country. In some things I would have done differently to what he has done, nothing inconsistent with the Congress of the United States, moving right straight forward and onward in passing the necessary legislation to complete the great work begun. He has made no move with Congress and Congress has made no move with him. He does not undertake to dictate to me, but he has pursued his own line of policy and we ought to pursue ours. If we believe we could go further than he has gone, why, let us pass the needed legislation; and if then the President vetoes it, we will go with us, why then the issue will be made and met. But I do not think any necessity will be made. I have an undoubting faith that we cannot the needed legislation to secure the liberties of all men in this country, and bring the States into Congress in a proper manner, it will receive the sanction and approval of the Executive Government. I know that it has been and is the policy of the Democratic party to represent that a great and inevitable conflict is to come between the President and Congress. It was so represented before the country last autumn. We met it in New Jersey, in Pennsylvania, and in the great State of New York and to day, six of twenty five loyal States that have stood by the country, twenty-three of them are in harmony with us upon this floor—stronger to-day in our sentiments and opinions than on any other day the sun ever shown upon, and we will be stronger to-morrow. There are some men, it seems to me, who are more devoted to the President than the mass of men who elected him. I think it to be our duty to give the President a manly, generous and honest support—to look on with hope and confidence, but to be as inflexible as destiny itself with the cause of impartial and universal liberty in the country as either for which 275,000 Union soldiers sleep on their bloody graves to-day—a cause for which more than 100,000 scarred and maimed heroes tread the soil of the country. They have done their duty—their whole duty. They have trampled the rebellion down under the iron heel of war and it is committed not to the President alone, not to Congress alone, but to the Administration put in power by the American people, to restore this Union, and to so restore it that there shall be no oppression, and no rule or regulation that shall oppress a single man we have made free. These are our words, to use the language of the President of the United States Abraham Lincoln pledged himself to his country and his God for their emancipation and to maintain their liberation, and that pledge I believe every department of this Government, Executive, Legislative and Judicial will maintain. Measured by what existed last April we have made progress, in some sections a great deal, in others less, and in some, perhaps, we have gone backward. But there has been a general progress during the last nine months measured by what existed when the President entered upon his duties, and what now exists in the country, taking the whole rebel area into account. We have made progress, but we have not made so much as we had made and I think we could have made. But if we have made less progress than we desired to make, we must make more in the future. That progress has been made daily by adding to the great cause why it was just and by daring the last four years of its ordeal. We have had twenty five years of silence and thoughts. Words and thoughts are stronger than cannon balls, and we have had four years of bloody war. Slavery, and everything that belonged to it, has prostrated before us to-day and the foot of a regenerated nation is on it. Sir, I hope no word will be uttered, and no step be taken, of a character to change the word to the British lion, the cross of St. George, and the French eagle, that we have been false to the English and French governments of seventy and seventy-five years of servility and cowardice in the world. It never ought to be in the lips of the American citizen. I hope not. Sir, that we are to consult and ask here. The way to settle the question is to say to the rebels we do not want to degrade you, we have suffered for twenty years your arrogance, your insolence and your inhuman rubbers, we have the dishonor and disgrace of a policy that changed the cotton of bloody civil war to peaceful industry, to make the class of slavery dominant in a republican and Christian land, we rejected your suggestions to reform the people, we shunned and trembled war, we met the contest we fought bravely with all the better part of the country, but you were defeated, crushed annihilated, your power was broken, your armies were disbanded, your ordnance, your powder. Not a flag of any

waves between the capital and the Rio Grande, not a rebel soldier bears a rebel bayonet anywhere. We do not seek your lives or your blood, and you have but little property for us to seek if we would. All we ask is this, and this we shall ask and this we shall have as sure as God rules in the world. We have the men emancipated by the war, emancipated by legislation, emancipated by the proclamation of the martyred President, emancipated by the grand crowning act—the Constitutional Amendment. We shall have these men as free as you are to treat promptly their native hills. I want every rebel, and every rebel sympathizer, every repentant and unrepentant rebel in the land to understand that the loyal men of this country who voted the blood and treasure, and who gave their sons for the preservation of the Union and the cause of liberty have sworn it, they have written it on the lids of their bibles, they have engraved it on their door posts, that these men shall be free indeed, not serfs, not slaves, and that no black laws or unfriendly legislation shall live on the books of any community in America. Mr. Wilson continued his argument, that loyal people had a right to the guarantee he had indicated. There was no difference, except on minor points, to some mode of action in the Union party. There had been these differences for twenty-five years in the Union party, and out of them had grown nothing but a free and manly discussion of great public questions. The Senator from Delaware, when he spoke of divisions in this great party, did not know who was who had fought the great battles for the country and for liberty if he supposed that men accustomed to speak their minds freely as becomes American citizens upon all great questions, were to break up, sever and be disrupted for the benefit of men who had linked their names forever with the cause of human slavery on this continent, and some of them with the cause of the rebellion. Mr. Wilson said he hoped that at no distant day these sects would be filled by men who, whatever might have been their errors in the past, would support the cause of the country and of liberty to men, and that these freedmen degraded by two centuries of slavery would in all respects be free, and that they would go on with us in a career of elevation and improvement.

A CHANGED FEELING.—Ike Bee's Review, in its day by far the ablest of Southern publications, took part in the rebellion, was shortly thereafter discontinued and the editor thrown into prison by the Davis Government, and is now revived as a thorough friend of the Union. In his opening article, the editor utters the following sentiments as to his faith in the United States:

A nation which has proven itself capable of passing through such a crisis—involving the movement of armies and navies scarcely inferior to those which followed in the wake of the great Napoleon, and the expenditure of money of which the powerful States of Europe have been a stranger, and of which they can scarcely realize the facts, and sustaining through it all its currency and credit unimpaired, is not likely to go down in any future contingency.

This much must be admitted, and the powers of Europe may now recognize in the United States a colossal rival, vast in territory, in population and ambition; inured to arms and industry, a nation of soldiers, sailors and workingmen; ready for the sword or the scythe, fearing nothing which the world can offer in competition or in conflict. The monarchies of Europe combined would present but a feeble barrier to the future advance of this new giant power.

It is well North and South—there is but one feeling in America, and it is that her destinies are in her own keeping; and that nothing of interest or favor is to be desired or looked for from any of the monarchies of the old world. They have been tested in the hour of trial, and have been found to be time-serving, bigoted and in the last degree selfish. Incapable of great statesmanship, they have taken their position, and must abide the result.

A wise and liberal national policy will speedily restore to the United States all that it has lost by the war; and a magnanimous and forbearing spirit will bring into harmony again its recently jarring elements, and constitute one people out of its

THE TRIAL OF JEFFERSON DAVIS.—The last report is that this distinguished victim of Abolitionism is to be tried by a Military Commission. Months ago Mr. Johnson as good as pledged his word that Mr. Davis should have a fair legal trial, before the proper civil tribunal. Salmon P. Chase is Chief Justice. He knows very well that if Mr Davis be awarded a fair civil trial, his honorable acquittal must follow. Therefore he is resolved that Mr. Davis shall not be tried by a civil tribunal, if he can prevent it. * * * The Chief Justice is determined to have Mr. Davis executed by any means, no matter how foul. His Radical followers clamor for the blood of Davis. It is only by a mock trial, by a "Military Commission," or a positive ukase from Mr Johnson, that the penalty of death can be declared against him. He is innocent of any offence or crime known to our Constitution or laws. Hence a trial by any civil or just tribunal would command his acquittal. The Radicals must have his life—like wolves and hyenas they pant to lap his blood and gnaw his remains. Chase knows how to ensure to them this feast—to give up the noble quarry to Stanton, chief of butchers, most cowardly of murderers, most atrocious of wretches, who will organize a Military Commission which will be certain to convict. The people will wait and see.

The curiosity of the above will no doubt have a curiosity to know where it originated. We beg to assure him that it is not taken from one of the English Journals which have long made it their chief work to malign our country and to revile those whom our people have entrusted with power; nor does it come from any newspaper in that section of country which was lately in rebellion. It was published last week as an original article in the State Rights Democrat, the leading organ of the Democratic party of this State. These false and disloyal utterances fully illustrate the spirit and character of that party. They show that Democracy is still the same that it was during the rebellion; that the views of the party have not been altered, nor its purposes changed since it gave encouragement and lent its influence to those who without provocation or excuse began the war with a determination to cause the separation of the States which compose our national Union.

The Democratic party of Oregon will very soon come before the people asking to be entrusted with the administration of the affairs of the State. So deeply is the party imbued with the spirit of treason that even at this juncture its leading journal—the organ of the mass of the party and the truest index of Democratic sentiment which is to be found among us—boldly declares that the leader of the insurrectionary movement has done no wrong; that he is guilty of no crime; that he ought to be released, and that the loyal men of the country are the guilty ones in that they beat down the rebellion and are now determined to hold the chief actor in those scenes of blood to a rigid accountability for crimes more atrocious than any which had been perpetrated since civilization began.

Jefferson Davis "an innocent and noble man!" Then was Tiberius a pattern of humanity and Caligula a saint. Then was Judas an example of fidelity, and Benedict Arnold and Arthur Georgey the men who of all others should receive the highest homage and praise. Then is patriotism ignominious, and unfaithfulness to country and liberty the highest virtue which can adorn the character of man.

Perhaps, however, it is fit that the party which worked and voted and prayed for the success of the rebellion, should not now abandon its friends in the day of their adversity. In this one thing at least, the Democratic party is consistent. It adheres to the doctrines of the rebellion, and does not forsake those who failed to accomplish their object of destroying the nation

We have never had a doubt that the Democratic party believed the rebels were wholly right in their efforts to establish a nationality based on human slavery but we did not suppose that any one professing to speak for the party would, at a time like this, have the temerity to avow such a belief We did not think that any person whose position in the party entitles him to be regarded as its leader, would dare just now to declare that "Jefferson Davis is innocent of any offence or crime known to our laws" Here, however, we have such an avowal Here is a declaration that the cause of the rebellion was the cause of justice and law, and that the loyal people of the country are guilty of the crime of treason against Jefferson Davis and the Government he attempted to establish.

This then is Democracy It is a reiteration of those disloyal utterances which we heard so frequently while the rebellion lasted Such sentiments are the emanation of treason itself The purpose to betray his country when opportunity offers, is discernible in him whose speech declares the innocence of the leaders of the late insurrection, and the guilt of those who were instrumental in suppressing it The man who has that in his head which prompts him to conceive such sentiments as those above quoted, and that in his heart which prompts him to utter them, brands himself,

From the extremest upward of his head
To the direst end and dust beneath his feet
A most finished specified traitor

The President Favors the Admission of Southern Members.

NEW YORK, Feb 19 —The Philadelphia Bulletin's special dispatch from Washington says The President's veto message on the Freedmen's Bureau bill was very elab rate, covering upwards of thirty pages of foolscap. He is opposed to the bill in every shape, and believing that many of the features are unconstitutional he says no such legislation for the South ought to be adopted while the Southern States are not represented, and thinks there is too much of the appointing power in the bill confided to the President He enters into full discussion of his reconstruction policy, and thinks that the Southern members ought to be admitted

WASHINGTON, Feb 20.—The Supreme Court has decided to assume the consideration of such cases from the lately rebellious States as have been suspended on the docket during the war, Chief Justice Chase alone dissenting. The Court also has ordered argument to be resumed on the test oath on the second proximo

The President after stating his objection to the Freedmen's Bureau bill as unwarranted as a military measure and likely to entail a great expense to the Government, sums up as follows "I cannot but add another very grave objection the Constitution imperatively declares that each State shall be represented in Congress, and the original freedmen's bill was necessarily to be passed in the absence of the States chiefly affected, because the people were contumaciously engaged in rebellion Now the case is changed The States are attending Congress by their representatives soliciting their constitutional rights. The very fact that the reports were and are made against the good disposition of the Southern people, is the additional reason why they should have representatives of their own to explain their condition, reply to the accusations and assist, by local knowledge, in perfecting such measures immediately affecting themselves. I would not interfere with the unquestionable right of Congress to judge, each House for itself, the qualification of its own members, but that authority cannot be construed as including a right to shut out in time of peace any State from representation. At present all the people of eleven States are excluded, those who were the most faithful during the war not less than others The State of Tennessee, for instance, whose authorities were engaged in rebellion, was restored to its constitutional relations by the patriotism and energy of an injured and betrayed people and I know no reason why Tennessee should not fully receive all her constitutional relations to the United States

"The President stands towards the country in a different attitude from any member of Congress who is chosen from a single district The President is chosen by the people of all the States. Even States are not represented, and it would seem to be his duty to present their just claims to Congress. The indefinite or permanent exclusion of any part of the country from representation, must be succeeded by a spirit of disgust and discontent It is unwise and dangerous to pursue a course which will unite one large section of the country against another, no matter how much the latter may predominate; and it is hardly necessary for me to inform Congress that in my own judgment most of these States, as far as depends on their own action, have already been fully restored, and are entitled to all their Constitutional rights. Reasoning from the constitution itself and from the actual situation of the country, I feel bound to presume, that with the Federal courts restored and in the full exercise of their functions, rights and interests, all classes will, with the aid of the militia, be essentially protected. Should this expectation unhappily fail, which I do not anticipate, the Executive is already armed with power to enforce the laws."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—In the Senate, Mr Wilson introduced a concurrent resolution to disarm and disband the militia in the rebellious States Mr Wilson read letters from Generals Thomas, Swayne, Hartsuff and others in the Gulf States, which say that there was danger of the extinction of the negro race and expulsion of Northern men, if the militia were not suppressed by United States forces.

Mr. Howard introduced an amendment to the representation bill, giving the right of suffrage to all citizens of African descent who have been enrolled in the army and navy, who can read and write, and are possessed of property to the amount of two hundred and fifty dollars

Mr Stewart introduced a bill concerning national banks in certain States, which provides that in addition to the $300 000 000 banking capital now authorized, $4,000,000 more shall be distributed as follows to California $1,000,000, Nevada $400,000, Oregon $100 000 Idaho $200 000, Washington and Arizonia Territories $100,000 each.

Mr Cowness introduced a bill to grant the right of way through the public domain for the construction of highways, canals and ditches for mining, agricultural and manufacturing purposes, which was referred to the committee on public lands

In the House, Mr Rogers introduced a bill constituting eight hours a day's work for all laborers and mechanics employed by or in behalf of the Federal Government, which was referred to the judiciary committee

Mr Motley introduced a joint resolution to amend the Constitution of the United States so as to exclude from all offices of the Government those who have or may hereafter engage in rebellion or conspiracy against the Government, which was referred to the Committee on Judiciary

Mr Ingersoll introduced a bill to reduce the duties on unsized paper for banks and newspapers, which was referred to the committee on ways and means

The House passed the bill directing the Secretary of the Navy to place a steamer at the disposal of the Western Union Company now laying the American and Russian telegraph

Bills were introduced providing for the payment of bounties due to soldiers in 1861 and 1862 to repeal all laws exempting Government lands from taxation empowering the States to tax them, imposing a tax of quarter of one per cent upon them, giving bounties to the one hundred day men

U S Circuit Court—M P Deady J—Monday Feb 19th 1866 Tracy vs Crawford In this case the Court found the facts will be very substantially agreed on by the parties The Court ordered that the two parties to the agreement in the case should appoint each a referee to examine the books and papers and ascertain the amount of rent and taxes paid and such other items as may be necessary to assess the value of the building assessed That the product of this assessment be returned when the weight and fineness of the metal was given and that upon this data the Assessor was to determine the value of the bullion in the market at the time and place of making the return That the assessor was authorized to assess the value of the bullion in some lawful money of the United States including legal tender notes, the money in which the tax was paid That in law there was no difference between a gold and paper dollar of the United States and that if there was any in fact, the Court could not ascertain it and required the parties to adopt either as a standard, excluding the other. This bullion was assessed according to the coin form standard of value throughout the United States as legal tender notes, and if other articles or things in this district are assessed by a gold value, then the want of uniformity in fact as well as law arises from the adoption of the gold standard in such cases instead of the common one—legal tender notes Court adjourned until Thursday

INCIDENTS —For the purpose of showing one of the many difficulties met with by him who undertakes to compile such a book of references as a City Directory the following paragraph from Draper's Directory, just published in that city "Brannan John, colored boot-black, Sacramento Bailey, K street, between Front and Second. Being asked By your spell your name? John Brannan replied, No, Sir, John Brannan The John is not what I mean, is the Brannan spell the same as Samuel Brannan? No, Sir, John Brannan Will spell your name, then He replied I can but my trade I can't spell" In canvassing it is unfrequently occurs that men are met with who have a perfect horror at seeing the compiler write their names in his book, but the feeling is greatly assuaged by telling them that it costs nothing to have their names recorded The apologies of such cases are frequently laughable Again, some escaped convict, defaulter or absconding debtor is to be found, who, in no circumstance will allow his name to made public by inserting it in a Directory Their actions tell plainly the reason Why they look upon the Directory as a curse to community

DEATH OF AN OLD CREOLE ACTOR.—Jean Rochette, a native of France, aged 40 years, died at the County Hospital in San Francisco recently Deceased was a boatman in San Francisco in 1849, and a friend of the celebrated Count J B E de Boulbon Subsequently he became connected with the circus as an athlete, performing with the ring—bells and other feats of strength He then got a situation with the clown role with great success. He made the tour of Mexico a few years since, and returned broke down and penniless For a year or more he was supported by Mr. Taylor, owner of the Cosmopolitan Hotel here, who finally gave him a home in his own family, but finding at length too ill to suit up, it was found necessary to remove him to the Hospital, where he died He was a man of liberal impulses, and during his professional career, gave many benefits in aid of different charitable objects, and individuals who stood in need of his kind offices. "Alas, poor Yorick! he was a fellow of infinite jest," but forgive "et on him, and he had almost passed from the memory of those he had amused and aided in years gone by, before he passed from the stage of life.

THE RECENTLY LOST LOGS.—A private letter from the Dalles gives the following extract of a letter received there from Mr. Mills, dated Quartz Ledge, Jan. 27th. The writer says he "went to the Rock Pillow ledge, and the level is so low as to let the water may be now considered solved. It is evident that the valuable mining property in this ledge will be worked to it, and we have not broken through to see how far it goes in. The quartz is good and the gold can be seen in it. It is full of the green sulphate of copper and iron black pyrites. Distance from the front heading to the ledge is 416 feet, and has the appearance of being a large one."

CIRCUIT COURT.—R D SHATTUCK, J., February 19th 1866. Action of Joseph Beckman, judgment against [illegible] for $132, being in suit of defendant's claim [illegible] that plaintiff.....H Mitchell et. Marcus Neff, [illegible] in favor of plaintiff for $1385 16.....State vs. Geo. Hall, charge larceny of a pair of boots from a saloon; verdict, guilty, sentenced to hard labor in the [illegible] for one year.....State vs. Ed. Fitzgerald, [illegible] of absence of material witnesses for [illegible] was discharged.....Abraham Smith, admitted to practice law in Fourth Judicial District.

[illegible] February 20th, 1866.—Thomas Kilpatrick, [illegible] the larceny of a purse containing $38 in money from a [illegible], found guilty.....Lafayette Caples plead [illegible]

THE DALLES.—[illegible] Rhodes.—A number of the Portland [illegible] by Chief Engineer Young, yesterday paid a visit to Vancouver to witness the first trial by the new [illegible] erected for the use of the Government at that post. The machine works well, is of Button & Blake's old make, and was formerly in use at the Springfield, Mass., armory. In working up some dry wood to prove west, after the late struggle, no doubt Uncle Sam concluded his subjects at Vancouver were by [illegible] a fire engine, and so sent it hither.

STEAMER DAISY.—The Sandy, or Base Line road, east of Portland, all know in good condition for a pleasant drive of a few miles, being dry but not dusty as in summer. The city east of Portland is as fine as one could desire a choice of scenery. The grounds of the asylum, the county farm at Mt. Crawford, and the farms and open country all the way past much the appearance of an old settled country in the land of well to do. The Mt. Hood story on the south side of the road is in a fine condition, and ought to be improved.

[illegible].—An order was received in Sacramento yesterday [illegible] ing to the Sec, for hydraulic hose and nozzles to be used in hydraulic mining, to be forwarded to [illegible], well packed for a journey of one thousand miles, and sent by Wells, Fargo & Co.'s express The owners of Montana should know that hydraulic hose and nozzles made in this city by a competent person, Mr. [illegible] has filled several orders, and we think they give [illegible] satisfaction.

[illegible] Grand.—Hoffman J., February 20th 1866—John O'Brien, drunk and disorderly, paid a fine.....[illegible] Sohn, same, committed to jail for two days.....[illegible] Wilson, found guilty of riding a horse at a rapid rate in the street, paid a fine.....Perry Baker, arrested for [illegible] out of the Street Commissioner, for driving on the sidewalk, [illegible].

CITY'S RIVER ORDER.—The boats between Portland and the Dalles are making regular trips daily, and the river above Dalles is supposed to be open. A boat was sent out the Umatilla yesterday from Celilo. Present appearances do not seem to indicate that "winter will linger in the lap of spring" this year.

THE LECTURE OF DR. BENSON last evening, on "The War, its Evil and its Good," was able and instructive. The parallels between the civilizations of Virginia and Mexico were particularly discriminative and just. The whole lecture was thoroughly appreciative of the great issues of the war.

A SQUASH.—Yesterday a farmer appeared in the streets of this city with a wagon said to be the first one ever made in Oregon. The end-gate of the box gave the maker's name and the date 1849.

[illegible] MEETING.—The meeting called for to-day at 11 A. M., at the rooms of the Portland Stock and Exchange Board is a matter of business, and men of all [illegible] make it a point to be there.

Articles of incorporation have been filed during the past week incorporating a paper manufacturing company. The name of the incorporation proposing to erect the mill is "The Oregon City Paper Manufacturing Company;" principal office at Oregon City; capital stock twenty thousand dollars. Incorporators—Arthur Warner, William Barlow, W. W. Buck, Samuel Miller, Jacob Wortman and Thomas Charman. If the present high price of paper continues the company cannot fail to make money. If the newspapers have to continue paying high prices, they may have one pleasant reflection, when our paper mill is started, that we need not send the money out of the State to purchase it.

There can be no doubt that the Capital City is increasing more rapidly and substantially than most towns on the Pacific. Daily we see new dwellings and new business houses being commenced in every direction The hardest of the winter weather could not check the demand for carpenters and lumber Up go the houses and shops, almost in a day, and still the city is for vacant houses—houses for rent We give at an early day a detailed account of our prosperity during the past year

The Penitentiary Commissioners are making arrangements to commence the early erection of prison buildings on the State land adjoining this city.

THE BLOODY FOURTEENTH.—As the clown said of his apprentice, we think the correspondent who wrote the following "ought to be ridiculous" Hear how he talks of the boys who did the fighting—and various other things in the South. We quote second-hand from the Stockton (Cal.) Herald:

Mark Twain, writing to the Territorial Enterprise, says the entire Fourteenth Regiment is destined for Arizona, but they have to send the boys forward in small detachments because they go overland, and water is scarce—if they went in a body there would not be enough of the article to go around. This is the military explanation, but it looks weak to me These Fourteeners do not care anything about water. All they want is lightning to drink and something to steal After they pass over the ground between here and Arizona the ground can never be mapped again with any degree of accuracy, because they will steal the very parallels of latitude as they go along and carry them off with them

INFLUENZA OR COLD IN THE HEAD is easily cured by taking a tablespoonful of the Genuine Hall's Pulmonary Balsam, with some Cathartic Medicine at bed time

Miscellaneous Items

The progress of Southern trade, since the suppression of the rebellion, attracts attention In cotton, some 1,100,000 bales have been delivered at Northern or Western ports and towns and at the estimated value of $160 000 000 Most of this has been paid for in money, which is at this time being applied to the development of the industry of the South Mobile New Orleans Memphis Nashville Savannah Richmond and Wilmington are growing wonderfully At Savannah where before the war the trade was but two or three steam boats running to New York, there are now five lines of steamships, a fourteen first class steam ships in all There is also a line between Savannah and Philadelphia and Boston direct and two direct Liverpool with two lines of boats with Charleston two with Florida and between Savannah and Augusta there are four lines of all sixteen steamers

In a recent Senate debate, Mr Sumner read the following from a Florida letter

Another big trade is going on that of running negroes to Cuba and Brazil They are running through the country dressed in Yankee clothes hiring men, giving them any price they ask, to make turpentine on the Bay sometimes on the rivers sometimes to make sugar They get them on the cars Of course the negro don't know where he is going They get him to the Bay and tell him to go on the steamer to go around the coast, and away goes poor Cuffee to slavery again They are just cleaning out this section of the country of the likeliest men and women in it Federal officers are mixed up in it, too

Queen Victoria, when at home regularly teaches as a Sunday school and bible class for the benefit of those residing in the palace and its vicinity How attentive she is to her own children may be inferred from a late pleasing circumstance The Archdeacon of London on one occasion was quizzing the young Princes, and, being surprised at the accuracy of their answers, said to the youngest Prince, "Your governess deserves great credit for instructing you so thoroughly in the catechism" Upon which the boy responded, "Oh, but it is mamma who teaches us the catechism."

The play of the "Confederate's Daughter" is having great success in one of the London theatres. General Butler appears in it as "the tyrant of New Orleans," makes love improperly to the confederate's daughter, but is foiled by a faithful negro, who has a fight with Butler and beats him with the broadsword in a square fight But later afterwards undertakes to hang the lover of the said daughter, but he is reprieved Butler is removed from command and the confederate's daughter triumphs. The play is highly exciting

The New York Tribune says "Most of the ostensible organizations of the States lately in revolt, have chosen not to renew their former fraternal relations with the like organizations in the loyal States wherewith they formally dissolved connection at the outbreak of the rebellion. For this decision they are answerable only to God and their own consciences. It would be a bitter mockery to profess to love where they really hate—to confide where they profoundly distrust."

Sir James Mackintosh invited Dr. Parr to take a drive in his gig. The horse became restive. "Gently, Jimmy," said the Doctor, "don't irritate him; always soothe your horse, Jimmy. You'll do better without me. Let me down Jimmy." Once on terra firma, the Doctor's view of the case was changed. "Now, Jimmy, touch him up; never let a horse get the better of you; touch him up, conquer him, don't spare him—I'll walk back."

A Clergyman writing from Texas to the Post Office Department concerning a contract for carrying the mails, says he contributed in no way to the Confederate cause, except to pray for its success, and is in doubt whether, on that account, he can conscientiously take the test oath, "but," he adds, "as my prayers were not answered, I think they should not be considered as 'aid and comfort' given to the enemy."

A paper published in Texas, under the title of the San Antonio Express, after declaring its principles and purposes, concludes as follows "We can almost read our duty in three lines—First, Educate the people, second, give dignity to labor; third, Plant upon immovable foundations the liberty of speech and of the press. Do these, and all things shall be added unto us."

The bill already passed the House to extend suffrage to the negroes of the District of Columbia will pass the Senate. Will the President sign it? That's the question. If he signs it, and we think he will, what will the Copperheads do? Will they drop him and give up the ghost? The Copperheads may be bracing their nerves.

The number of postage stamps made by the National Bank Note Company the past year, was about four hundred millions. The number of three cent stamps used is about one million a day. The cost of printing, perforating, gumming and packing the stamps, is twelve cents a thousand.

The Territorial Enterprise tells of one man who arrived in Virginia City on the 18th inst., having with him $100,000 in gold dust, which he "nobled" in Montana; also of other parties who had in their possession $300,000 in gold dust. This will increase the fervency of the Montana fever.

The younger son of the great Patrick Henry, died in Floyd county, Virginia, in circumstances of great destitution. The Legislature of that State was appropriating thousands on a marble statue of the father at the very time the son was begging his bread.

A Florida paper says vessels lying for some time off the coast of the Gulf, waiting for emigrants to Brazil, were neither more nor less than slave traders gathering up unsuspecting negroes for transportation to Cuba, and sale in the market there.

A petition is being circulated and numerously signed, praying Congress for a speedy organization of the Indian country on the borders of Arkansas, Missouri and Kansas, into a territorial government, and throw it open to settlement.

There are at present in the revenue service of the United States thirty-four vessels, stationed at various points along the coast from Maine to Oregon. The seizures made by these cutters amount to several millions of dollars annually.

A man who had removed the remains of his brother from a battle-field near Petersburg, found that coffins and transportation were expensive He therefore quietly put the bones in his carpet bag, and so took them home.

A college student being examined in Locke, when he speaks of our relations to the Deity, was asked: "What relations do we most neglect?" He answered with much simplicity—"poor relations."

The report of the Secretary of War shows that 174,223 rebel soldiers surrendered after the fall of Richmond Bad for the last ditch! That number of brave men should have overrun an empire

The only duel ever fought in Illinois was in 1820, between Alfonso Stewart and William Bennett. Stewart was killed and Bennett was hanged, and thus ended duelling in that State.

There is at present living in Sweden a young man aged nineteen, who is nine feet five inches in height, at eight years of age he was five feet four inches.

Miss Pauline Cushman, who distinguished herself as a Union scout and spy, is playing at the Leavenworth theatre. She is said to be a first-rate actress.

Col Drum, of General McDowell's staff has received a dispatch announcing his promotion to the rank of Brevet Brigadier General in the regular army.

The Memphis Daily Avalanche has been revived but, like a man roused too soon from sleep, growls and grumbles most unanimably

An affectionate Irishman once enlisted in the 75th regiment in order to be near his brother who was corporal in the 70th.

MILLS IN OWYHEE.—The Owyhee Avalanche gives the following flattering account of the progress of work on the new mills in that district

COWAN S M Co.—The officers of this company arrived here the 1st of November They had no mill site selected not an order out for lumber not a man employed and strangers to all On the 16th of November the ground was broken for the mill foundation, and now it is nearly completed The building is fully inclosed, batteries and stamps are up and ready for crushing the flume up and pouring for the pans in position the engine bolted fast through a stone bed of six feet and the main ore for the boiler going up rapidly and well The rate of progress thus far made warrants us in saying that in five or six weeks more the shrieks of another whistle will greet us regularly as the Morning Star This company's mine the Silver Legion, is being worked night and day The shaft is 5x9 and down 70 feet At the surface, the quartz was gold bearing, but each foot downward it approximates richer, and improves in richness They have nearly 200 tons of pay rock ready to draw to the mill and their road about finished to the mine The company intend to sink the present shaft but little deeper, run side drifts and supply the mill from this mine During the early part of the coming summer hoisting works will be substituted for the windlass One of Ericsson's improved hot air engines will be used, and has already been ordered from New York, and is expected to reach here in May The old hot air engine proved a failure, but the improved one is a success Mr Musgrave, Superintendent of the Cosmos Company, has seen it work and knows what he is ordering The engine works noiselessly, and one of eight horse power occupies a space of only five feet square, and can be placed in an ordinary shaft house, and weighs near one ton Its economical character is its especial recommendation No water is needed and one fourth of a cord of wood will supply one of eight horse power two four hours. We have but little doubt that two years from now War Eagle and Oro Fino mountains will be dotted all over with these machines

LINCOLN MILL.—In company with Mr. Balcom, agent of the company, we took a view of and noted progress on this mill, last Wednesday. Everything is going on properly and is now looking quartz mill like The batteries are set and the frame work completed ready to receive the stamps Five pans were in their places and the others are by this time. *The stone is being cut for the en*gine and boiler beds The machinery is being secured up preparatory to active service A vast amount of machinery is necessary to complete a twenty stamp quartz mill, and time is required to put it up rightly—which is being done by this company Work is progressing day and night on their mine—fourth extension Oro Fino. The mining force has been increased this week Mr Coleman, Superintendent, left New York in December for Owyhee, and is expected here in a few weeks

It is related that a German doctor lately swam across Lake Constance, a distance of eleven miles He did it in six hours and ten minutes

Money Order Office, P. O. Department.
The Office has been designated as a MONEY ORDER OFFICE, and is now prepared to furnish Orders from one to thirty dollars on any Money Order Office in the United States E G RANDALL P M
Portland, Oregon, Feb 12 1866
The specific object of the Money Order system is to afford facilities for the safe transfer through the mails of small sums of money, so as to prevent as far as possible the Loss of money letters which contain generally but small sums For this reason the maximum amount of a money order is limited by law to thirty dollars Hence it is not intended that this system shall assume the functions and interfere with the business of Banks and of Bankers by furnishing exchange for large sums of money The mode by which safety is secured consists in leaving out of the order the name of the payee or party for whom the money is intended In this respect the money order differs from an ordinary bank check
An advice or notification containing full particulars of the order is transmitted by the issuing Postmaster to the Postmaster at the office of payment The latter is thus furnished before the order itself can be presented, with the necessary information to detect fraud if any should be attempted—thus insuring the transfer of small sums in safety without danger of loss

"Good-By, Old Arm!"

A HOSPITAL INCIDENT—BY GEORGE COOPER

The knife was still—the surgeon bore
The shattered arm away
Upon his bed in painless sleep,
The wounded boy lay;
He woke, but saw the vacant place
Where limb of his had been,
Then faintly spoke "Oh, let me see
My strong right arm again!"

Good by, old arm! the soldier said,
As he clasp'd the fingers cold;
And down his pale but manly cheeks
The tears in gentle rolled;
My strong right arm, I've shared of yours
My store, my clothes, my home;
Now give me one more wish
But it's hard to part such trusty friends:
Good by, old arm, good-by!"

"You've served me well those many years,
In sunlight and in shade;
But, comrade, we have done with war—
Let dreams of glory fade.
You'll never more my share swing,
In battle fierce and high;
You'll never hear another fling
Or from another shot

I do not mourn to lose you now,
For home and mother's hands
Oh, proud am I to give my limb,
For freedom's dear sake bands!
Thank God! no selfish thought is mine,
While here I bleeding lie:
Bear, bear it tenderly away—
Good-by old arm! good-by!"

How we came to have Cheap Postage

A correspondent of the San Francisco Bulletin gives the following account of how we came to have cheap postage

Low postage in the United States came, as the greatest discoveries often come, simply by a lucky accident, and not by any foresight or wise conclusion. In the year 1842, when "Captain" Tyler was President, and Wickliffe of Kentucky, was Postmaster General, the Kentuckian undertook to charge on letters from New York city to Lockport, in western New York, 25 cents instead of 18¾ cents, the amount always paid before. The reason of the change was, because the Post Office Department at Washington, finding it more convenient to carry letters by the detour of Lake Ontario than by the direct route, could cipher up more than 400 miles; and all postage over 400 miles cost 25 cents a letter. A citizen of Lockport, who had been in Congress, and who grew indignant at this "imposition," threatened to sue the Lockport postmaster. He paid the extra postage under protest; but the Lockport deputy insisted all the while he was acting under orders from the deputy postmaster of the city of New York, who acted under orders directly from Wickliffe, Postmaster General.

On the strength of this information an indignation meeting was held by the citizens of Lockport for relief from illegal exactions imposed by the Postmaster General for the purpose of oppressing the citizens of that place. Your correspondent was secretary of the meeting, and a committee of three was appointed to report on postal affairs. On that committee were Edward J. Chase (brother of Chief Justice Chase), Lot Clark, and another gentleman. The meeting adjourned for one week, to give the committee time to report, and also to overhaul postal laws generally. The result was that Messrs. Chase and Clark prepared a convincing report on the small grievance in particular, but more especially on post office extortions in general, showing that the United States charged very far beyond France and Great Britain for inferior mail facilities; in short, pronounced high postage a fallacy. The committee also addressed an earnest letter to Postmaster General Wickliffe, protesting against the oppressive order for increased postage. He replied tartly and sharply to the aspersions thrown on his official acts.

At the time all this fuss was up between the Postmaster General and the citizens of Lockport, there was some kind of combination, permutation or arrangement, by which it so fell out that the citizens of Lockport sent no letters to New York city in Postmaster Wickliffe's mail bags. Then the Postmaster General set secret agents at work to detect these mail evasions. There was no package Express Companies in those primitive times, and it was shrewdly suspected that Bank agents, who were the only expressmen then, might possibly be carriers of the secret mails from Lockport to New York. Yet nothing definite was known. If my memory serves me, Livingston & Fargo, in those days, were trusty and enterprising "Bank Exchange" agents, but carried no packages except bank bills. The Lockport people found it so convenient to "express" letters, that they finally came to express packages. On close inquiry it will probably be found that the first package expressing ever done in the United States in a regular business way was done between Lockport and New York, city during the years 1842 and 1843. However, this is an open question, and the mammoth proportions of the express business, at this day, are worthy of discussion as to their origin.

But I am wandering from the originators of low postage. At an adjourned meeting of the Lockport low postage men, resolutions were adopted denouncing high postage and the oppressions of the Postmaster General in overcharging the people of that place. It was also resolved, to instruct their representatives in the New York Legislature to ask for a legislative committee to investigate postage tariffs. Thomas T. Flagler, a prominent resident of Niagara county, called the attention of the next Legislature to the subject of postage reform, and a committee was appointed, of which Mr. Flagler was chairman. The subject was thoroughly ventilated, a report made, and a resolution passed at that Legislature requesting the Governor, Hon. William H. Seward, to forward copies of this report and of the resolution to the Governor of each State. Governor Seward readily aided the effort. The sequel is as follows: Members of Congress, at the next session of that body cheerfully advocated the New York plan of low postage. The twenty-five cent postage, which had been the maximum, was reduced to ten cents. After that it tumbled down and down, until the maximum came to its present standard of three cents, disregarding distance. California, under Dr. Gwin's steamship policy, was for six years forced to ten cents, while throughout the East, letters were carried the longest distance for three cents, but finally this unjust discrimination against California was rectified.

REMARKABLE ESCAPE OF A CHILD.—Some years ago a young child, residing a short distance from the fort, fell into a well. Company's servant, who attempted to rescue himself of life by snapping a loaded pistol at his head. Each time the pistol missed fire. A friend entering his room shortly afterward, he requested him to go to the window of the room, it is then found will was very unlucky. Satisfied that the weapon had been duly primed and loaded, they [illegible] sprang up, exclaiming, "I insist on being treated for something great," and from that moment gave up the idea of suicide, which for sometime previous had been uppermost in his thoughts. That young man afterward became Lord Clive. Two brothers were one occasion walking together when a violent storm of thunder and lightning overtook them. One was struck dead on the spot, the other was spared; also would the name of the great reformer, Martin Luther, have been unknown to mankind. The holy St. Augustine, having to preach at a distant town, took with him a guide, who by some unaccountable means mistook the usual road and fell into a by-path. He afterward discovered that his mistake, having heard of his movements, had placed themselves in the proper road, with the design of murdering him. Bacon, the sculptor, when a tender boy of five years old, fell into the pit of a soap boiler, and must have perished, had not a workman, just entering the yard, observed the top of his head and immediately delivered him. When Oliver Cromwell was an infant, a monkey snatched him him from the cradle, leaped with him through a garret-window, and ran along the leads of the house. The utmost alarm was excited among the inmates, and various were the devices used to rescue the child from the guardianship of his newly found protector. All were unavailing, but would be rescuers had lost courage, and were in despair of ever seeing the baby alive again, when the monkey quietly retraced its steps and deposited its burden safely on the bed. On a subsequent occasion the waters had well nigh quenched his insatiable ambition. He fell into a deep pond, from drowning in which a clergyman named Johnson was the sole instrument of his rescue. At the siege of Leicester, a young soldier, about seventeen years of age, was drawn out for sentry duty. One of his comrades was very anxious to take his place. No objection was made, and this man went. He was shot dead while on guard. The young man first drawn afterward became the author of the "Pilgrim's Progress." Doddridge when born was so weakly an infant as was believed to be dead. A nurse standing by fancied she saw some signs of vitality. Thus the feeble spark of life was saved from being extinguished, and an eminent author and consistent Christian preserved to the world. John Wesley, when a child, was only just preserved from fire. Almost the moment after he was rescued, the roof of the house where he had been fell in. Of Philip Henry a similar instance is recorded. John Knox, the renowned Scotch reformer, was always wont to sit at the head of the table, with his back to the window. On one particular evening, without how ever, being able to account for it, he would neither sit in the chair nor permit any one else to occupy his place. That very night a bullet was shot in at the window purposely to kill him as it grazed the chair in which he sat and made a hole in the foot of a candlestick at the table. Many years after now eighty stout Russian sailors might have been seen struggling in the water off St. Helena one of them, [illegible], who was fast succumbing. He was saved to live as Arthur Wellesley Duke of Wellington. The life of John Newton is but the history of a series of marvellous deliverances. As a youth he had agreed with many of his companions on board of a man of war. He arrived too late to go the boat in which all from it had gone was capsized, and all its occupants drowned. On another occasion when business had detained him, that he came to the spot much later than usual, the great surprise of those who were on the beach observing him unknowingly pass in safety. He went out in the boat as he had before to spend a day, which threw up before he reached her. But the left the shore a few moments after he must have perished with the rest on board.

GENERAL GRANT'S LETTER.—Mrs. Swisshelm has the following in her new paper the Reconstructionist, published at Washington

Returning from the War Department about two evenings ago, we reached the Seventh street junction in time to see a car leave. Trying not to feel tired we leaned on a tree to wait for the next car. Quite a number of people were waiting as usual, and after some moments a tall man, apparently above sixty five years old, angled in our, and stepping up began asking questions about the streets and cars. He was slightly bowed, and had his rather tall, black hat drawn well down on his head. His voice and manner at once recalled him on whose knees we sat in the long time ago, to hear the wonderful story of that little pig that always went to market like a brave big brother, and the little squealer who never could find his way home.

The whole manner of the old man was so different from that of so many old men one meets here, and who always remind us of a placard board, with its tattered remnants of old and new gaudy announcements, for we are over at a loss to know whether their uncertain gait, and half imbecile, half impertinent stare is more the record of a late debauch, or the sin of forty years ago. This man on the contrary, looked like an old family Bible, with its well worn leaves and brightened clasps. He had never made a sharp bargain—never found out that this world is very wicked, for his world had been full of faith and truth.

In a few moments we had become confidential; and we were thinking of offering our services as escort to the Navy Yard where he, a stranger wished to go. This could not well be done with out an introduction, and we had no card, so handed him a prospectus, saying

"I would like you to know me, that is my name."

Without looking at the name he peered kindly into our face and said

"And I would like you to know me. My name is Grant. I am the father of General Grant."

How sorry we were to own that we had never seen his son. Wonder if Ulysses is good and noble enough to be, worthy to be that old man's son. We have not in years seen any one who so impressed us as the noblest work of God—a good honest man.

He told us all about his dear, old wife at home, that they were well and strong—had brought up six children, of whom Ulysses was less promising and have lost two by consumption before the war began. He thinks it would not be well to make Ulysses President, for there are a great many men, any of whom would make a better President than him. We were glad to learn that Ulysses was a dull boy, who never became bright, because it favors a fancy of ours, to wit that it is well for the world that smart children never live to grow up. God bless the dear, good old man! How sublimely great he is in his single-minded honesty! He must have spent his life very near to God, and the power of thinking in straight lines, so wonderfully displayed in General Grant's report, is a very natural outgrowth from the straightforward, moral honesty of parentage.

While we talked, a gentleman who knew Grant, came up, and we left them together; parting from him as though we had been friends for years.

TOM CORWIN'S WIT.—While Mr. Corwin was a member of the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, he brought in a bill for the abolition of public punishment at the whipping post. He made a speech therein, to which an elderly gentleman replied somewhat as follows:

"This gentleman is not as old as I am, and has not seen as much of the practical operations of the system of punishment which he desires to abolish. When I lived in Connecticut, if a fellow stole a horse or cut up any rustics, we used to tie him right up and give him a real good thrashin', and he always cleared right out, and we never heard of saw him any more. It is the best way of getting rid of rogues that ever was tried, and without expense to the State."

Corwin rose and replied:

"Mr. Speaker I have been puzzled to account for the vast immigration from Connecticut to the West; but the gentleman last up has explained it to my entire satisfaction."

The bill was passed without further discussion

THE LATE JUDGE COLLAMER ON RAILWAY PASSES.—A little incident occurred soon after his second election to the Supreme bench in 1850, which will illustrate the sterling integrity of the man. Soon after receiving his commission as Judge, one of the leading corporations in the State sent to him a free pass for a year over their road. Shortly after receiving it the Judge was holding a term of one of the Courts in his judicial district, and almost one of the first cases for trial was a case wherein the same railroad corporation was a party. It was in the forenoon session, the case was called up and commenced, and the Judge said to the writer of this article: "I felt as though I was sitting with a bribe in my pocket" Says he, "I adjourned the Court early for dinner, went home and inclosed the ticket in an envelop to the company, and deposited it in the Postoffice before I again went into Court, and that," said he, "was the last and only free pass on any railroad I ever held while on the bench."

Letters from Kingston, Jamaica, say in the late disturbance the negroes killed three persons. The Government shot or hanged in return two thousand and one hundred. Besides those there were a large number killed by marooms and soldiers in the interior, of whom no reports are made

THE STANDARD
AND COMBINATION CUSHIONS

MESSRS. PHELAN & COLLENDER

WOULD RESPECTFULLY CALL THE ATTENTION of persons wanting Billiard Tables to the great superiority of the above tables, manufactured exclusively at their establishment

At the Billiard Congress of 1864, composed of all the first class players of America, it was unanimously resolved that tables of our manufacture should be used at all matches for the Championship, as the best and only reliable tables

These Billiard Tables have received the unqualified approval of the best players and most competent judges who have unhesitatingly pronounced them unequalled for general excellence and durability

Seven distinct patents for improvements in Billiard Tables have been granted to us by the United States Patent Office, and we have lately obtained a Patent from the French Government, for our [illegible] in Billiard Cushions.

We employ in the construction of our tables a variety of machines specially made for the purpose by means of which we are enabled to insure a uniformity of manufacture not necessary hitherto attainable in Billiard tables.

Having a long experience and thorough knowledge of all the appliances of Billiards and constantly on hand a large stock of the best and most thoroughly seasoned materials, we are prepared to furnish every thing required in the Billiard line with unprecedented dispatch

The eminent French Billiard Player, M Porger, has published the following opinion:

"NEW YORK 24 August, 1864

"On the eve of leaving the United States I am happy to declare to all amateurs of Billiards that after a residence of eleven months through the principal cities, I have been enabled to judge in a satisfactory manner of the superiority of the Billiard Tables manufactured by Phelan & Collender New York. The system of manufacturing is superior, that I am happy to [illegible] their style of cushion is the Prince. They have united to their manufacture of American Billiard Tables that of the French Tables, of remarkable excellence and beauty For these reasons, I am happy to make this declaration

"BERGER, CLAUDIUS,
Prof. of Billiards, Paris"

Parties ordering from us will find our prices as low as good work can possibly be made for. We sell first-class articles at a fair price, and will not make an inferior article at any price

Orders by mail carefully and promptly executed. Illustrated Catalogues and Price Lists sent by mail. The "Billiard Cue," a journal published in the interest of Billiards, and containing details of all novelties, a complete record of Billiard news, and everything of interest to amateurs of Billiards, sent free on application

General Remarks.

Revenue stamps may be used indiscriminately upon any of the matters or things enumerated in Schedule B except playing and playing card stamps, for which a special one is to be provided

Foreign stamps cannot be used in payment of the duty chargeable on instruments

It is the duty of the maker of an instrument to affix and cancel the stamps required thereon If he neglects to do so, the party for whose use it is made may stamp it before it is used, but in no case can it be legally used without a stamp An instrument subject to stamp duty but executed and used unstamped, prior to August 1, 1866, may be received in evidence [illegible] section 158 of the Act of June 30, 1864 If issued since, the case falls under section 158 of said Act, recommended by the Act of March 3, 1865

Suits are commenced in many States by other process than by writ, as summons, warrant, publication, petition, &c, in which cases these, as the original processes, severally require stamps

The issuer of an affidavit taken before a justice of the peace, notary public or other officer duly authorized to take affidavits, is held to be a certificate, and subject to stamp duty of five cents, except when taken in suits or legal proceedings

Certificates of Loss in which there shall appear any written or printed evidence of an amount of money to be paid on demand, or at a time designated, are subject to stamp duty as "Promissory Notes"

The assignment of mortgage is subject to the same stamp duty as that imposed upon the original instrument that is to say, for every sum of five hundred dollars, or any fractional part thereof, of the amount secured by the mortgage at the time of its assignment, there must be affixed a stamp or stamps denoting a duty of fifty cents

In case two or more persons join in the execution of an instrument, the stamp to which the instrument is liable under the law may be affixed and cancelled by either of them

In conveyances of real estate, the law provides that the stamp affixed must answer to the value of the estate or interest conveyed

No stamp can be affixed on any warrant of attorney accompanying a bond or note when such bond or note has affixed thereto the stamp or stamps denoting the duty required, and where no any bond or note is secured by mortgage but one stamp duty is required on such papers, such stamp duty being the highest rate required for such instruments, or either of them. In such case a note or memorandum of the value or denomination of the stamp affixed should be made upon the margin or in the acknowledgment of the instrument which is not stamped

LUNG BALSAM!
The Remedy for Curing
CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, Asthma, Croup,
Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

IT IS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, HYDROPHYSIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucous; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver into a proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and [illegible] effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION; IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is of active and powerful remedy for curing the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.
